EXTRA WORK FOR VOTERS

City and State politics for the future-for the gubernatorial contest of next year and for the mayoralty fight of the succeeding year-will be influenced by the result of the election on Tuesday next, when candidates for 'row' offices and magistrates will be Penrose followers who are aiding the Voters' League.

430,000 Have Right to Vote Approximately 430,000 men and have qualified themselves oting in the primaries by registering. Of these, it is estimated that 100,000 are women. Independent leaders, beieving that the women hold the balance of power, are confident that the woman vote will swing the election in favor of the Voters' League. Senator Vare predicts that the "fifty-fifty" candidates will win by 100,000 majority. More conservative estimates made by Vare leaders run between 60,000 and 70,000. Leaders of the Voters' League, while ready for a close fight, look to see a majority of at least 25,000 for the independent candidates. South Pole, and located the South Marnetic Pole, and the even more famous Antarctic adventure of 1914-15, when the intrepid explorer and his hardy companions made their way against seemingly invincible barriers of it. Shackleton's present enterprise is not, strictly speaking, a voyage of discover. It has, rather, for its objective the apploration of the petrified forest and the location of the "lost" island of Tuanoki, the waters adjacent to which have not been sailed for more than ninety year. This lends the element of romance to the Quest's essay into the waters of the South Polar region. The waters of the South Polar region. This lends the element of romance is the Quest's essay into the waters of the South Polar region. The petrified forest was first seen by Sir Ernest on the island of Trinidad, at a point where he landed from Captain Robert P. Scott's ship, the Discovery, more than twelve years ago. Tuanaki, the somance to the practical side of the enter-prise undertaken by the explorer. Sir Ernest has hopes that the island and some of the others in the same locality will prove serviceable as coaling sta-tions or wireless relay stations between New Zeeland and South America New Zealand and South America. Laboratories have been built above and below decks of Shackleton's quaint have been erected from which soundings up to 30,000 feet can be taken. Besides a kite balloon, the ship also will be equipped with a seaplane. A powerful wireless equipment will make it possible for the explorer to be for some time in contact with the world at large, but there will be a long time, it is expected, when the Quest will be out of wireless touch. From London the tiny vessel, the bown and sides of which have been strength-ened with steel plates two feet thick will make for the Cape of Good Hope via Salvages, near Madeira, then on to-the lonely island of Tristan, Dachura and Gough Island, and then on to the unknown sea.
